REMINDER TO ALL COLLEGES

(1168) What's new? In your future do you have plans for: (1) guest lecturers, (2) special programs, (3) conferences, (4) new courses, (5) bibliographic tools, (6) lecture or TV and radio appearances by you, (7) exhibits, (8) celebrations or festivals, (9) tours to the Soviet Union or Eastern Europe, (10) or anything else?

Have you or any of your students received grants, fellowships, scholarships or other awards? All your colleagues are eager to know what you are doing. Please send whatever information you have to us. OSEEN is published twice a month. Ideally, it would be marvelous if your newsworthy items appeared in this publication early so that all who are interested would be able to participate in your programs or share in your triumphs.

If you need help or information about the activities of the Center for Slavic and East European Studies, please contact Miriam Schwartz, Outreach Coordinator, Center for Slavic and East European Studies, The Ohio State University, 344 Dulles Hall, 230 West 17th Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43210, Telephone: (614) 422-6864 or (614) 422-8770.

LECTURE AT OSU

(1169) Vladimir Frumkin, Lecturer from Oberlin College, will present a lecture in English on "Songs from the Soviet Underground" at 3:00 p.m. March 9, 1977 in Room 14, University Hall, on the Ohio State University campus, Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Frumkin, who arrived in the United States in 1974, was for many years a screenwriter and director of musical education programs for television and radio programs in Leningrad. He also conducted bi-weekly talk shows about music on the Leningrad State Television Station. This lecture, held in conjunction with International Studies 230, "Introduction to the Soviet Union," is sponsored by the School of Music, and the Center for Slavic & East European Studies. For further information call the Center office, (614) 422-8770.

FILM AT OSU

(1170) March 11, 1977, "The New Russia", a color film directed by Theodore Holcomb. Text by Harrison Salisbury. Ohio State University, Ohio Union, Conference Theater, 1739 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio. Length: 52 minutes. Show times: 12:00 noon, 2:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m.

ADVANCED RUSSIAN TRAINING AT PUSHKIN INSTITUTE

(1171) The American Council of Teachers of Russian, in conjunction with the Pushkin Institute and Moscow State University is offering a program for advanced language study under the direction of advanced specialists from the Institute and University. Running from February through May and September through December, the purpose of the program is to help graduate students move toward complete fluency in reading, writing, speaking and listening comprehension.

Application deadline for the spring semester is November 15, and May 15 for the fall semester. For applications and further information, write or call Claire Walker, Executive Secretary, 10 Club Road, Baltimore, Md. 21210. Telephone: (301) 467-0604.

BRYN MAWR RUSSIAN LANGUAGE INSTITUTE

(1172) Bryn Mawr College announces the establishment of a Russian Language Institute for advanced and specialized language study. The work of the Institute will be directed toward professional needs in various fields, with primary focus on Russian language instructors at both the pre-college and college level.

The Institute will begin its activities this summer with a four-week Intensive Program for Instructors of Russian (June 27-July 23). Under an agreement with the Pushkin Institute in Moscow, two senior scholars will participate in the 1977 Summer Program. This cooperative endeavor will include seminars, lectures, practical sessions, and round-table discussions, supplemented by language laboratory and opportunities for individual consultations. It is hoped that the Program will provide participants with a unique opportunity for updating language and language teaching skills as well as with a forum for the exchange of ideas on the teaching of Russian.

Any teacher of Russian may apply. Applications and further information available from Professors Ruth L. Pearce or Dan E. Davidson, Russian Language Institute, Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania 19010.

CARNEGIE ENDOWMENT STUDENT INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

(1173) The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace is offering a limited number of internships in its international affairs programs to qualified students. In addition to providing students with research opportunities, the internships provide an unusual opportunity for interns to become familiar with the Washington foreign policy establishment.

Applications are encouraged from undergraduates, graduating seniors, and graduate students in any academic discipline who can demonstrate oral and written ability, motivation, analytical skill, and interest in international affairs and foreign policy.

Students will be considered for the following sessions: Fall of 1977 (September 12 - December 23) and Winter of 1978 (January 30 - May 19). Monthly wages of $550 are paid semi-monthly. Also economy round-trip fare and benefits are provided.

For further information, contact: Humanitarian Policy Studies, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 11 Dupont Circle, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Telephone: (202) 797-6470

SAMIZDAT RESEARCH CENTER BEGINS WORK IN MUNICH

(1174) The Samizdat Archive Association, headquartered in Munich, announces the opening of its new International research center to promote the study and scholarly use of "samizdat" material received in the West from communist countries which practice strict censorship.

The research center plans to undertake 34 separate research projects during 1977. These will be carried out in cooperation with scholars and specialists in many countries. Research work and publications will be conducted in three languages--English, German and Russian.

The new center is located near the University of Munich, with which it will maintain working ties.

Martin Dewhirst, a specialist on Russian and Soviet literature, will serve as first director of the Munich center while on leave from his teaching position in the Department of Slavonic Languages and Literature at the University of Glasgow. He also has been appointed to a visiting scholar position at the University of Munich.

The Samizdat Archive Association (Samisdat-Archiv, e.v.) and its new research center were created as the result of more than three years' organizational work by a group of scholars and writers from 12 nations.

Dr. Albert Boiter of Munich was named executive secretary of the Samizdat Archive Association at its founding meeting in April 1976 and is special adviser to the Munich research center. Dr. Boiter, a director of research and planning for RFE/RL in Munich, is curator of the large archives of samizdat materials from the Soviet Union maintained by Radio Liberty, and was managing editor of a 22-volume collection of samizdat texts distributed by the Research Department of Radio Liberty through eight public repositories in the United States and Europe from 1972 to 1976.

FULBRIGHT-HAYS PROGRAM FOR LECTURERS FROM EASTERN EUROPE & USSR

(1175) Applications are currently being accepted from American universities which wish to invite visiting lecturers for either 1977-78 or 1978-79 from countries in eastern Europe and the Soviet Union, as follows:

1977-1978 or 1978-1979: USSR

1977-1978: Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary
Poland, Romania, Yugoslavia

USSR. Invitations for 1977-1978 were invited earlier and those received were forwarded to the Soviet Union with a request for nominations. A limited number of additional invitations can still be forwarded for the next academic year but we will need to receive these by February 28, 1977. Universities are also invited at this time to submit invitations for the 1978-1979 academic year. We shall appreciate receiving completed application forms or an indication of interest by March 15, 1977. There is no restriction as to discipline. Countries in Eastern Europe. Information is given in the supplements as to fields and periods of time for lecturers from eastern European countries. Completed application forms or indications of interest should be submitted by March 15, 1977.

Funding. International travel will be provided for lecturers from all countries. Universities are requested to provide a stipend which is compatible with local costs of living. The Council has received a modest allocation from the Department of State to assist universities which cannot provide a full stipend. Since the maximum amount which can be made available is $23 per diem, it is necessary in all cases for universities to provide at least some contribution toward the stipend, if not the full amount.

For further information, see the enclosed supplements, or contact: Georgene B. Lovecky, Executive Associate, Council for International Exchange of Scholars, Suite 300, Eleven Dupont Circle, Washington, D.C. 20036. Telephone: (202) 833-4950.

EAST EUROPEAN STUDIES AT INDIANA

(1176) The Indiana University Russian and East European Institute is pleased to announce the establishment of a new interdisciplinary training and research program on Eastern Europe. The program is funded by a recent three-year grant from the Ford Foundation which includes fellowship funds. A major objective is to help provide innovative area training for career positions in such fields as government, business, banking, journalism, the law and other professions.

A primary vehicle for this program is a consecutive series of problem-oriented multidisciplinary research seminars, focusing principally on economic, trade and political issues for the region. During 1977-78, the first year of the program, the focus of the seminar will be THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF EAST-WEST COMMERCIAL RELATIONS. The program is open to regularly enrolled students in all Indiana University graduate schools and is designed to be pursued in conjunction with regular degree programs in Business, Economics, Political Science, History, Law and Slavic Languages and Literatures or with the Russian and East European Institute Certificat Program.

Candidates for participation in this new program are encouraged to apply for financial aid to the appropriate school or department, as well as to the Russian and East European Institute. The deadline for receipt of applications for graduate fellowships and assistantships offered by the Russian and East European Institute is March 1. For financial aid applications, admission forms to the Russian and East European Institute, and further information write to: Alexander Rabinowitch, Director, Russian and East European Institute, Ballantine Hall 565, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47401.

ETHNIC/FOLK ARTS IN OHIO

(1181) The Ohio Foundation on the Arts, Inc. is conducting an important survey of existing Folk/Ethnic Arts in Ohio. For the purpose of the project, the folk and ethnic arts in Ohio are defined as visual and performing and expressive arts--art, crafts, dance, music--which have been learned by example or by word-of-mouth, usually through a family or community tradition, without formal academic training, by residents of Ohio.

The Ohio Foundation on the Arts, Inc., sponsor of the Folk/Ethnic Arts in Ohio survey, is a private non-profit organization. The Foundation encourages and supports the arts in Ohio by serving as an umbrella agency for specific programmatic areas, such as Folk/Ethnic Arts in Ohio. The Foundation works in concert with the aims of the Ohio Arts Council to enhance the cultural life in Ohio. In addition to the programmatic areas, the Foundation cooperates with other non-profit institutions to coordinate and promote conferences and workshops to help the individual artist and arts organizations gain more expertise in technical areas.

If you do not have a copy of the Folk/Ethnic Arts in Ohio survey, please contact Rosemary Joyce, Folk/Ethnic Arts in Ohio Project Director, Ohio Foundation on the Arts, Inc., Suite 2800, 50 West Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215. If you need further information or wish to share information about folk/ethnic arts, please call Rosemary Joyce collect, person-to-person at (614) 221-4300.

SLOVENE LANGUAGE CLASS AT DAYTON

(1184) A group of ten Slovene members of the Yugoslav Club of Greater Dayton met at the University of Dayton on Tuesday evening, February 22, to discuss the formation of a class for the study of the Slovenian Language. They decided to meet every Wednesday evening from 7:30 P.M. to 8:30 P.M. at the University of Dayton Library, Room 603, and will use the Gobetz-Loncar Slovenian Language Manual as their basic text. Anyone interested in learning this language is welcome to join the group. For details and further information, call the Chairman, Frank Debevec, at (513) 233-9150.

NEW COURSE AT OTTERBEIN IN RUSSIAN LITERATURE

(1185) Otterbein College in Westerville, Ohio, will offer a new course Spring and Autumn quarters of 1977, in "Russian Literature in Translation." This course will be a survey of Russian literature in English translation from Turgenev to Pasternak. There will be reading and analysis of Turgenev's and Chekhov's plays and short stories, Dostoevsky's Crime and Punishment and The Underground Man, Tolstoy's Anna Karenina, and Pasternak's Dr. Zhivago.

Instructor: Alex Pashovich

Credit: 1 Unit or 5 Credit Hours.

NEW COURSE ON HISTORY OF THE JEWS IN RUSSIA

(1186) Professor Arnold Schrier, of the University of Cincinnati, will offer a new course on the history of Russian Jews during the Tsarist and Soviet periods. The emphasis will be on government policy toward Jews as a minority. The course carries three credits and is intended for graduates and undergraduates. For further information, contact: Prof. Arnold Schrier, Department of History, University of Cincinnati, Telephone: (513) 475-2388.

POLISH AMERICAN FILM WINS AWARD

(1187) The film entitled "For the Benefit of the Country Hereafter" recently received an award in the history and biography category of documentary film at the Chicago International Film Festival.

The film interweaves the story of an immigrant grandfather and his family with biographical sketches of Poles in American history. The hardships of an immigrant are revealed in the transition from an agrarian to an industrial society. The stories of the Poles in Jamestown, Kosciuszko's last will, Ernestine Potowski-Rose, Dr. Marie Zakrzewska, Helen Modjeska, Ignace Paderewski, and Joseph Tykocinski-Tykociner are also told. All seem to be forgotten and neglected by the authors of American history textbooks. The film honors these men and women who left the agonies of Europe to help build a new nation. Their struggles, sacrifices, and achievements are documented in this half hour presentation.

Anyone interested in screening this 16mm half hour color film should contact the filmmaker, Robert Radycki, c-o Polish American Congress, Illinois Division, 2952 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, Il. 60618.

The American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies Announces a New Program

THE DOBZHANSKY LECTURES

To the Heads of Russian Departments and Soviet Studies Programs

We are trying to direct the attention of the American Academic Community to a new resource at our disposal, the body of Soviet-trained scholars who have adopted America as their country. The scholars on this list range over fields from cybernetics to art history, but all are distinguished in their disciplines, and each can contribute a valuable perspective. We have worked with them on their lectures to make sure that they understand the expectations of American academics. They are eager for exposure on American campuses and would, in most cases, be willing to come for a fee of about one hundred dollars and expenses.

We would urge you to consult with the relevant departments of your university to share the sponsorship and the publicity for any of the lecturers you may choose, because we have tried to select speakers who are of interest in their own right as scholars and not in any sense primarily as recent arrivals. If travel expenses are a problem, we hope you can coordinate invitations with neighboring institutions.

INFORMATION AND SUGGESTIONS FOR AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES REGARDING APPLICATION FOR A LECTURER UNDER THE FULBRIGHT-HAYS PROGRAM

BULGARIA, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, HUNGARY, POLAND, ROMANIA, YUGOSLAVIA, USSR

Timetable.

Countries in eastern Europe, invitations for any part of the 1977-1978 academic year:

March 15, 1977

Late invitations to USSR scholars, 1977-1978:

"immediately"

Invitations to USSR scholars, 1978-1979:

March 15, 1977

Invitations to scholars from countries in eastern Europe are forwarded as they are received; late invitations to Soviet scholars will also be forwarded immediately. Invitations to Soviet scholars for 1978-1979 will be reviewed by the Council's Advisory Committee at its meeting during the second half of March and forwarded immediately thereafter.

Length of Stay. Invitations should be for a full quarter/semester or academic year, except as otherwise noted on the attached chart. Some country programs have provision for a very limited number of Distinguished Professor lectureships which can be for four to six weeks (four weeks is the minimum). Scholars must be clearly at the top of their profession in their age group in order to qualify for these special appointments.

Name Suggestions. The Council will be pleased to receive and transmit names of scholars in whom universities are particularly interested. (Titles and academic affiliations abroad must be provided.) However, no guarantee can be given that scholars so requested will be nominated by the sending country.

There is no objection to restrictive name requests (i.e., one scholar only), but chances of success are smaller than if a university provides several names. Institutions providing name suggestions are requested to indicate whether or not they are willing to review applications of candidates other than those names in the event the name requests are not available. Universities which do not wish to request specific scholars are assured that lack of name suggestions will not affect the consideration given their applications.

The Council wishes to point out that invitations addressed to scholars who are current members of university faculties or research institutes abroad are more likely to succeed than those addressed to scholars who are affiliated with other institutions or who are retired. The staff will be happy to try to supply further specific information on individual countries.
